

POLICE ACCUSE BOYS OF MURDER

Claim To Have Solved The Mystery Of The Death Of The Elkhart Young Man.

VICTIM THROWN FROM TRESTLE

Allege That The Man Was Attacked While Train Hands Were Cooling Hot Box--The Body Dumped In The Race.

Elkhart, Ind., Sept. 14.—It is practically proved, the police of Elkhart and St. Joseph, Mich., claim, that Robert Noddruff, whose decomposed body was found in the hydraulic race at Elkhart on Aug. 24, was murdered, and Bart Tidy and William Griffith, who have been arrested by Supt. Silvers of the Elkhart department of police and Deputy Sheriff M. P. Dwan of St. Joseph, Mich., are charged with being responsible for the death of Noddruff.

Tidy, who is a strapping, big square-shouldered youth of 19, was arrested at his home near Solus, Mich. The prisoners told conflicting stories when brought to Elkhart, but both admit that they had a fight with Noddruff.

Commit Crime on Trestle.

Perhaps never before has the crime had a parallel in peculiarities. The victim was a passenger on a Big Four excursion train on the night he met his death. The train was returning from Marion and when it reached Elkhart it was discovered that it had a hot box on the rear wheel of the eighth coach, which was next to the last. The stop to fix the trouble was made on a high trestle and it required some time to cool the box and repair the damage.

Noddruff was seen to step onto the rear platform while the train was stopped and later it was discovered that he never returned to the coach. When his absence was discovered the train had reached a point between Elkhart and Niles.

Victim of Persecution.

Frank Sommers, a son of Noddruff's employer, instituted a search for the missing man, but was unsuccessful. Four days later, on the morning of Aug. 28, the badly decomposed body of Noddruff was found floating in the race, by George Thier.

and the theory that he had killed Noddruff had been thrown into the water was confirmed. A return of accidental drowning was made by the coroner, but the dead man's relatives were not satisfied and an investigation has been in progress ever since, resulting in the arrest of two suspects.

From Sommers and others on the train it was learned that Noddruff, who bore an excellent reputation, had been the victim of considerable persecution by Tidy and several companions during the trip from Marion.

According to the statement of several witnesses, Tidy and his crowd were badly under the influence of liquor and one witness goes so far as to say that she heard Tidy remark that they would fix Noddruff when they got a good chance.

Crowd Becomes Quiet.

At Elkhart Tidy and his companions were the first to leave the coach in which they had been sitting and later they were observed to take the rear seats in the last coach and the man sitting in front of them remarking that he "guessed Noddruff would not bother them any more." It was also significantly observed that after the stop on the trestle the intoxicated men were extremely quiet, in marked contrast to their behavior previously.

The police hold the theory that when Noddruff left the coach and took a position on the rear platform the abuse of Tidy and his companions was renewed and that a fight resulted in an unconscious condition Noddruff was knocked off the train, falling into the race and drowning.

Noddruff was 23 years old and the son of Frederick Noddruff of Elkhart. The boy's father was with Deputy Sheriff Dwan when the warrant for the arrest of Tidy was issued by Prosecutor E. A. Baker.

SEND WARSHIP TO NICARAUGUA

TO RELEASE AMERICAN CITIZENS

Conspiracy Of Tobacco Syndicate Leads To Brothers Being Taken Into Custody While Property Is Confiscated.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPPS-MORRIS.]

Washington, Sept. 14.—A warship has been ordered to convey United States Minister Merry to northern Nicaragua to investigate the charge that two American citizens, William S. Albers and his brother, are illegally held in prison at Ocotae.

Ocotae is seventy-five miles inland, and a force of American marines may have to be sent over through the rough mountain roads as an escort to the United States minister.

The gunboat Princeton, now at Panama, is likely to be the warship selected for the service. The Princeton, it is expected, will convey United States Minister Merry to the port of Amapala, on the gulf of Fonseca, on the southern boundary of Honduras. From Amapala the United States minister must travel overland to Ocotae, a distance of seventy-five miles, through a wild mountain region.

Once at Ocotae the minister will make a thorough investigation of the case and satisfy himself that Mr. Albers and his brother are legally under arrest, and if so that they have a fair and speedy trial.

If the Americans are illegally in prison the United States will demand their release and take steps to compel immediate compliance with the demands.

The officials of the state and navy department decline to make any statement, but it is known that the case is regarded as serious and as calling for prompt action.

Story of the Trouble.

An American of much intelligence and high character, who has been traveling in Central America for the last few months engaged in scientific work, has written a detailed account of the Albers case to friends in Baltimore which has reached here. He states that he is entirely familiar with the case, and reports as follows:

"The Limon company, of which William S. Albers is the manager, is located at Jalapa, Segovia, near the border of Honduras. This corporation is engaged in gold and silver mining, and in raising wheat and tobacco, and has made quite large investments in good faith.

"It appears that in March, 1905, a company of armed men, led by one claiming to be a lieutenant in the Nicaraguan army, and alleging that they were sent by the government tobacco syndicate, demanded of Albers that he permit them to enter and carry away his stock of tobacco under seizure.

"Albers replied that he had no contraband tobacco; that he obeyed the law; that he paid the government in full; that he held regular official receipts for all tobacco in his stores.

"He furthermore said that the first man who tried to enter his door would be shot, but that he would permit the lieutenant to go through with one man and inspect the tobacco in order that his assertions might be proved. This was done, and no contraband tobacco was found.

Refuse Permits to Americans.

"Following the search of the Limon company's premises, the executive at Managua, the capital of Nicaragua, issued a decree ordering that any one holding tobacco in stock should obtain a permit; and that should he fail to do this his tobacco would be confiscated, whereupon several Americans holding tobacco applied for the permits and were refused them.

"These American holders thereupon arranged to sell their tobacco to the syndicate, with the exception of Albers. But the treatment received from Albers, who had in his place American employees who could have enforced his threats if necessary, caused the syndicate managers to misrepresent and exaggerate the actions of Albers when they reported it to the president.

"As a result, charges of resistance to authority and violent abuse of the executive (which is a serious offense in many Latin-American countries) were made at the court of the district situated at Ocotae.

"Judicial warrants for arrests were issued, and both the Albers were taken into custody at Jalapa while peacefully walking the street near their place of business. They were taken to Ocotae, where, as far as is now known to me, they are held in custody pending the verdict of the court, which, it may be safely assumed, will convict them."

WIFE SOLD FOR GOOD HARD CASH, TO ANOTHER MAN

New York Cotton Merchant Purchased His Wife From a Poughkeepsie Merchant.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

New York, Sept. 14.—Appraising his wife's affections at $5,000, Charles E. Converse is credited with having transferred his life partner in person without her consent having been asked to one Paul McCormack, who had been named in the suit for divorce. The husband's action for absolute divorce was granted, the money paid over and Mrs. Converse became Mrs. McCormack.

These facts came out in a petition filed in the supreme court by Mrs. McCormack that she be permitted to see her child more frequently than once a month as the divorce writ declares. Her counsel, addressing the court, said: "Converse's character is best known by his own admissions. Converse does not deny that he bartered away his wife.

Wife Is Not Consulted.

"This was without her knowledge, and his 'great love,' as he expresses it, for his wife was such that $5,000 bought it. He is a confessed drunkard, according to the court record, and he does not even dare to deny the facts contained in his own letter."

Converse is a prosperous merchant of Poughkeepsie, while McCormack is a New York cotton broker.

INSIDE ACCOUNT OF PEACE TERMS

OUR WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENCE IS INTERESTING.

THE PART WILLIAM PLAYED

Sent the Czar Clippings of European Papers, Showing What Were the Truths.

(By William Wolf Smith.)
(Special Correspondence.)—Washington, D. C., Sept. 14.—From a gentleman formerly well known as a Washington newspaper correspondent and who has just returned from abroad, I learn some details as to the negotiations which led to the famous peace conference at Portsmouth which are of great interest, coming as they do almost first hand and indicating that Kaiser Wilhelm played a much more important part in the proceedings than he is generally credited with in this country. Probably the full story of the efforts of the Emperor of Germany to bring about a cessation of hostilities between the warring nations will never be told; in this case, at least he has apparently preferred to act as the operator of the limelight, the outlines of whose figure are but dimly discernible while his guiding hand directs the beam of light whose radiance bathes the person of the star performer on the darkened stage. At the same time there is no doubt that he exerted a powerful influence upon the situation and there is reason to believe that the final outcome was largely due to his personal efforts. Mr. Ingham was in Berlin at the time President Roosevelt sent his first communication to the Czar and to the Mikado, and as the details come from a diplomat familiar with affairs in Germany and the United States, who is in a position to be well informed and who told me friend he had seen the correspondence, the authenticity of the story is beyond question.

According to this information it appears that the appeal of President Roosevelt to the rulers of Japan and Russia to bring a peaceful conclusion to the war which was a source of so much regret and concern to the entire world, was the direct result of representations made to him by the Emperor of Germany. No country was more deeply interested in the war than Germany, not even England whose vigilance was accentuated by the possibility that it might be drawn into the affair, willy-nilly. That the German Emperor had assurances from the Czar that the good offices of President Roosevelt would be accepted by him may be accepted with one question for closely allied as are the rulers of Germany and Russia the Kaiser would not have acted without sufficient reason. Ascertaining therefore that overtures towards peace would meet with favor at the hands of the Czar, he suggested to President Roosevelt that he should take the initiative. What was contained in the original message and how much was left to be read between the lines, my informant was unable to say, but there is no doubt that President Roosevelt understood the Kaiser's position which was that many good and sufficient reasons operated to prevent him from entering the role of peacemaker. Primary among these reasons was that his relationship, to the Czar—they are first cousins—and the commercial interests of his country in the far East would necessarily make Japan suspect a personal, selfish interest in any effort he might put forth towards the ending of the war. The Czar and Kaiser were bound together by ties of kinship, friendship and mutual interests of their countries; thus Japan would reason and should the Emperor Wilhelm offer to mediate between his cousin and the Mikado the presumption in the Japanese mind that Russia was ready to quit and that he was really interceding in its behalf, would be inevitable. On the other hand, President Roosevelt, for reasons innumerable and unnecessary to mention, could act in the capacity of an intermediary and the Kaiser could assure him that the tender of his good offices would be favorably received by one of the two countries at least.

Perhaps a confidential note to this effect was sent to the Kaiser to the American Ambassador at Berlin. In any event, a note passed and the day or two later Europe learned that the President of the United States had solicited the Czar and Mikado to listen to the voice of civilization and to adjust their differences by employing the peaceful arts of diplomacy rather than by a continued conflict of arms. The above story of the inception of the peace conference may explain some lines in the cable messages exchanged between President Roosevelt and the Kaiser which have hitherto been the subject of much speculation.

Another interesting story in this connection is brought back by my friend from Berlin. As is well known the Czar of Russia is so well guarded by those whose interest imperatively demands that he should receive as little information as possible as to the true state of affairs in his empire, that little reaches him in the story Emperor Wilhelm did not relish this state of affairs and believing that his cousin should know the truth, he had a collection made of clippings of newspapers published in Europe and America bearing on the war and the internal affairs of the Russian empire. Realizing it would be useless to employ the customary channels of communication for such a purpose, he sent the clippings by a personal messenger with a private letter to the Czar urging him to read the clippings and learn what conditions actually existed and what the world was thinking and saying of them. As the messenger came direct from one ruler to another he succeeded in evading interception and the Czar learned from unprejudiced source what was happening and what was thought of it. If the story is true the action of the Kaiser undoubtedly resulted in the Czar receiving more information than ever before regarding matters of vital importance to himself and his country.

In speaking of the Kaiser it is frequently remarked that, like his brother, Prince Henry of Prussia, he speaks English without a German accent, while the German accent of his uncle, King Edward VII is noticeable. This is explained by the fact that the mother of Emperor William I was an English princess and surrounded herself with English maids, governesses and servants. On the other hand the Prince Consort was a German and in deference to his wishes, Queen Victoria favored German tutors and servants.

From diplomacy to fish is a far cry but a conversation I had yesterday with A. H. Frazier, the secretary of Blackford, the famous fish dealers of New York City, the largest concern of its kind in the United States, developed much of interest. The founder of this establishment, now dead, was formerly U. S. Fish Commissioner and no closer touch with this firm. Sometime ago Representative Gardner of Massachusetts was at the White House with a delegation, asking the President to direct the Fish Commission to increase its efforts to trace the elusive mackerel. It was this subject on which I questioned Mr. Frazier, who should know. "The reports are not exaggerated," he replied, "as the gradual diminution of the mackerel supply. We handle fifty per cent less mackerel today than a few years ago. What is becoming of the mackerel is a question for some one else to solve; all we know is the supply is growing less and less and the price increasing. The same may be said, however, of all fish and sea food. The price of fish will be higher this year and the supply smaller than ever before."

"What is the reason for the increase in the price of fish?" was asked. "Is it because the price of meat has risen to a figure where the people turn to fish as a substitute?" "Not at all," he replied. "The demand for fish is due to the taste and appetite of the American people who are more and more appreciating the delicate flavor of the finny tribe and the benefit to be derived from its price has little to do with it, with the exception of the cheaper varieties such as cod and haddock, the price of fish is equal to or greater than that of meat."

"How about the lobster?" I asked, prompted by the painful reminiscence of prices on the Jersey coast. "Lobsters," he replied, "are rapidly becoming extinct. This is no joke, and the scarcity of the supply explains why you pay a dollar and a half for a lobster that a few years ago would have gone begging at fifty cents. The shad, he continued, "seems to hold its own, but you of the Potomac shad. To hear you talk, one would think the shad was not known outside of the Potomac whereas the further north one goes the better the shad. Best of all is that of the Connecticut river where the cold water makes the flesh firm. Another theory which is exploded is that terrapin is at its best in Maryland and Virginia, especially in the former state. Terrapin comes to the New York market from Texas and Florida, the Carolinas, northward through Virginia and Maryland until Long Island is reached. The Long Island terrapin is best of all. Nothing the incredulous look with which this statement was received, he added: "There was an interesting test of this made several years ago. You know there are epicures in New York who believe nothing equals a Maryland terrapin and that no one but a Maryland dandy knows how to cook them. Among these was a man who kept a Maryland dandy solely to cook his terrapin. One day he became involved in an argument with Mr. Blackford as to the respective merits of Long Island and Maryland terrapin and a dinner was arranged for which he was to furnish half a dozen of the Maryland species and Mr. Blackford the same number from Long Island. Each was to invite three friends to the feast and a majority verdict was to be accepted. The plans were carried out and to the discomfort of the host the verdict was almost unanimous in favor of Long Island terrapin. Continuing Mr. Frazier noted that in supplying New York his firm not only brought fish from the lakes and the Atlantic coast but imported them from Europe. On the whole he said the supply of fish was rapidly diminishing and notwithstanding the efforts of the Fish Commission to stock the lakes and streams, the outlook was not promising.

Former Senator Donelson Caffery of Louisiana, a man who during his six years service in the United States senate marked himself as a man of independent thought and action, has been in Washington for a few days and while here talked entertainingly on political subjects. Mr. Caffery is one of the men who believes there must be a revision of the tariff but some of his utterances incidental to that discussion sound strange coming from a democrat and a southern democrat at that. He advances an idea unusual to northern ears when he says there is a natural predilection towards a protective tariff among the business interests of the south, and that while those interests down south vote the democratic ticket they are for the democratic party, said the senator. "At present it is agreed upon no issue. There must be revision of the tariff but that demand will come from northern states. Massachusetts is clamoring for it, while Iowa, through Governor Cummins, is making the most of every opportunity to force the revision idea to the front. There is too much protection sentiment in the south to permit southern democrats to actively champion a revision measure. The wants already have extensive manufactures and products for which it wants high protection. And should the democrats be entrusted with a revision of the tariff there would be another German or Smith to make it a protective measure. If any one hesitates about the sentiment of the southern senators let him recall Senator Bacon's tariff speeches and Senator Tillman's declarations." Senator Caffery predicts the organization of a new party. "It will be a reform party he said. 'Its issues will be the tariff and the trusts. The standpatters will stay with the republicans while other republicans will desert and join with many democrats in the new organization. Bryan would like to lead them but he will not succeed. He has achieved nothing but talk and the people are convinced of his insincerity. The new leader may be Roosevelt. There is no telling what move he may make in politics. He is everywhere, from the bottom of the sea to the mountain top."

News for the Railroad Men.

A verdict in favor of the Pennsylvania railroad for $100,000 has been rendered by the civil court at Wheaton, Ill. against the city of Chicago, in suits brought to collect damages from the city for property destroyed during the Pullman strike of 1904. The verdict will be appealed by the city.

Mexican parties have obtained a concession for a railway to Dowie's proposed Holy City in the state of Tamaulipas. It will be an extension of the road owned by the San Carlos Copper company, extending from San Jose to Linares, where it connects with the Monterey division of the Mexican Central line. A deposit of $16,000 has been made by the concessionaries as a guarantee of good faith.

The anti-pass agreement adopted a month ago was discussed at a recent meeting of the Western Passenger association. Each road admitted that it had strictly adhered to the agreement and not given any passes or reduced rates to influence traffic. No positive proof of a violation of the agreement was presented, because the passenger agents know their executive officers were parties to the original agreement. It was acknowledged that there had been a number of "misunderstandings" of the agreement, and it so happened that the road which made the mistake in each instance secured some competitive traffic. If half the reports in circulation are true the agreement has been broken by a majority of the roads, if not by all of them.

Modified Rules for Cattle in Transit. Secretary Wilson of the Department of Agriculture has agreed to make certain amendments to the rules recently laid down for the carriage of livestock under the 28-hour law. At the request of traffic managers of railroads entering Chicago and the officers of the National Live Stock association, the secretary and Dr. E. S. Salmon, chief of the Bureau of Animal Industry, held a conference with parties interested, in order that an understanding might be reached on the points in dispute. The railroad men wanted certain modifications in the requirements regarding stable cars, and the cattle owners desired an extension to 30 hours of the time allowed between rest periods. The secretary said he could not ignore the statute fixing the time limit, but he agreed to modify the order so far as it relates to the number of cattle in a car. He said also that if a train of livestock is within 50 miles of its destination at the end of the 28 consecutive hours, the department will not compel the railroad to unload the cattle and allow them to rest for five hours. Dr. Salmon's recommendation, approved by Secretary Wilson, is to the effect that "until further orders any cars equipped with feeding and watering facilities may be used for the shipment of cattle without unloading, provided the cattle can and do receive food and water en route, and that the number of cattle loaded in a car be left to the shippers, but that such loading shall not exceed the minimum weight as provided in the classification of the transportation companies." A joint committee, composed of three railway officials and three live-stock growers and dealers was appointed at the conference to take the necessary steps to secure an amendment to the federal law, so that the limit in which cattle may be loaded without unloading for food rest and water will be increased from twenty-eight to not less than thirty-six hours. Secretary Wilson has stated that he will favor such an amendment.

MANY QUESTIONS OF IMPORTANCE

PARISH MEETING OF THE MILWAUKEE DIOCESE, NEXT WEEK.

ELECT BISHOP COADJUTOR?

Madison and La Crosse Are Both Anxious to Have New Assistant Located There.

There is a movement on foot to elect an assistant for Bishop Nicholson of the Episcopal church. The project in hand also contemplates making either Madison or La Crosse his seat and the election which is to be held in Milwaukee on September 20th promises to be an epoch-maker in the history of the church in Wisconsin. Madison is most anxious to have the Bishop, Coadjutor stationed here. It is without a pastor at present and this would not only fill the vacancy but also make Grace Church of Madison a cathedral. La Crosse is equally anxious for the honor and the matter promises to create considerable interest when it comes up at the parish meetings of the Milwaukee Diocese next week.

Five Candidates
Five candidates have been mentioned for the office, and it is conceded that all are fully qualified. The candidates mentioned are Dr. W. W. Webb, president of Nashotah Theological seminary; Dr. H. D. Robinson, president of Racine college; the Rev. J. H. Larrabee, pastor of a Chicago church; the Rev. Charles L. Mallory, Kenosha, dean of Milwaukee convocation, and attached to the cathedral in the capacity of canon in Bishop Welles's time; and the Rev. George P. Burroughs, rector of St. Andrew's church and assistant secretary of the diocesan council for several years.

One Exception
With the exception of Dr. Larrabee, whose name has been connected with the position on account of his extreme high church proclivities, the candidates are familiar with conditions in the diocese and popular with the clergy. Dr. Mallory, the veteran in point of service here, is a graduate of Nashotah seminary, and he has been prominent in the affairs of the alumni association, which was formed for the purpose of bringing the remains of the Rev. Lloyd Breaks, one of Nashotah's founders, from the place of its original interment in Benecia, Cal., to the cemetery at Nashotah, and of erecting a monument over his grave. Both objects were attained eight years ago. As canon at the cathedral and as secretary of the council for years prior to his removal to Nashotah, Mr. Mallory had a keen insight into the affairs of the diocese and an extended acquaintance with its clergy and laymen.

Dr. Webb was elected president of Nashotah house about a decade ago, and under his skillful management the seminary has attained a degree of prosperity unknown before. His services to the church have been extensive and he wields a great influence at home and abroad.
Dr. Robinson has succeeded in building up Racine college to a high pitch of prosperity, and though comparatively a newcomer in the Milwaukee diocese, he is regarded as one of the most gifted of the diocesan clergy. The Rev. Mr. Burroughs is the youngest of the quibette, and he is also a graduate of Nashotah. As a pastor he has shown much ability, having built up the church of which he is pastor from a mission school.

Town Talk.

Three young Janesville lawyers and a banker got to boasting of their church attendance over the tea-cups last evening and some surprising claims for recognition among the righteous came to the surface.
"Heard you were at church with a young lady last Sunday. The minister remarked your presence and commented on it to one of his parishioners." This from the banker, addressed to Attorney A.
Attorney A.: "That's nothing unusual. The reverend gentleman assuredly had no cause to be surprised. I am quite a regular attendant."

Attorney B.: "Oh, yes, you're a whirlwind, an unhampered, untrammelled, devotional cyclone, you are. Been before this year? Used to go to church myself. Mother farmed out my brother and myself for a year apiece to pump the Methodist organ—and for NOTHING—no pay at that. And I pumped it. Was there every service."

Attorney A.: "Didn't YOU have anything to say about the contract before it was signed and delivered?"
Attorney B.: "Well, I did SAY SOMETHING and I got a beating for saying it."

Attorney C.: "As far as I'm concerned, and it seems to be my turn to testify, there is no use attempting to disguise the fact that my relations with churches have not been quite as intimate as those professed by you gentlemen. It remains to be said for me, however, that I once helped a fellow who was pumping an organ and throughout the service did contribute more than my rightful share of the labor."

HALF A CENTURY OF WEDDED HAPPINESS

Has Been the Portion of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wells of Footville—To Celebrate Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wells, who reside near Footville in the town of Plymouth, will celebrate their fiftieth wedding anniversary next Tuesday afternoon, and invitations bidding their many friends to the festivities will shortly be issued. Henry Wells was born in Kent, England, on Jan. 27, 1820, and was wedded to Eliza Kittle on Sept. 19, 1855. On the ninth of the month of December following the couple sailed for America on the "Tas Scot," arriving in New York on Feb. 1, 1856, after a voyage lasting nine weeks. They reached Janesville on March 1 and it is recorded that Mr. Wells at that time had just ten cents in his pockets. He was fortunate enough, however, to secure work as a stone-mason almost immediately and with the assistance of the estimable woman who shared his fortunes he was enabled to save $100 in a short time and purchase therewith a yoke of oxen. The next spring he worked the Gilbert farm on shares. Unhappily, however, on the part of both Mr. and Mrs. Wells, enabled them in March, 1864, to secure in the town of Plymouth the good sized farm where they now reside. In the passing years the area has been increased so that it now includes considerable more than 200 acres. Mr. and Mrs. Wells have been the parents of six children, two of whom died in infancy, and there are a number of grandchildren who will assist in making next week's celebration a notable one.

RAILROADS ARE NOW AFTER A REDUCTION

Tax Experts Have a Hearing Before the State Tax Commission in Madison.

Attorneys and tax experts representing the leading railroad corporations operating in Wisconsin will appear before the state tax commission at the Madison office this afternoon and object to the preliminary announcement of the state railroad property assessment and rate as announced a month ago by the commission, acting as a state board of assessment of railroad property in accordance with the act passed by the legislature of 1902. It is this law that the railroad companies are fighting in the courts as being unconstitutional. Arguments on these cases, or the one agreed upon to be tried as a test, the one brought by the North-Western road, will come up in the circuit court at Madison before Judge Samuel D. Hastings of Green Bay next Tuesday. At the hearing before the tax commission today the corporations will be represented by their most able attorneys and by the several tax commissioners and assistants of the several roads. The leading roads to be present at the hearing are the Chicago & North-Western; the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul; the Wisconsin Central; the Chicago, Minneapolis, St. Paul & Omaha, and others.

Supreme Court Sits
The state supreme court sat yesterday in Madison, taking up the regular August calendar. As it was the first sitting of the term, no decisions were handed down other than the announcement that some minor cases had been dismissed or continued by stipulation. The arguments on the first assignment of the term will be completed this week and the court will take a recess for two weeks, when decisions will be handed down and arguments resumed of cases on the next assignment. The August term will occupy the court until December, when such cases as are then unfinished will be continued over to the January term. The court has two terms a year. E. B. Lord and John M. Flynn, being qualified as attorneys, were yesterday sworn in their admission to practice before the supreme court.

AN OLD MAN SOUGHT BY HIS RELATIVES

David Lewis is Wandering Around the Country in a De-manded State.

An old man by the name of David Lewis, from Bangor, Wis., 82 years of age, is wandering around the country, having disappeared from his home, and the police have been asked to help in the search for him. He is described as five feet tall, wearing a black slouch hat, a blue serge coat and dark trousers. He was in Madison for the last two or three days, having been seen by various people there, but diligent search for him last night was unsuccessful and it is thought that he left that city, "bumming his way" either to Janesville or Milwaukee. He disappeared from his home at Bangor a week ago Monday and not returning his relatives became alarmed and communicated with various police departments in efforts to find the old man.

Labor Notes

The International Typographical Union convention, which closed at Toronto, Ont., recently took steps to enforce the eight-hour demand throughout its jurisdiction on January 1, 1906. It was also decided that Canadian members should pay an extra tax of 1 1/2 cents a month to the Canadian Trades and Labor Congress. The tax is in addition to the Canadian contribution to the American Federation of Labor.

Chicago printers have already precipitated a big strike.

About three thousand members of the Amalgamated Sheet Metal Workers went on strike in New York City recently, affecting the operation of nearly three hundred firms in different parts of the city and delaying the work on many important buildings.

Estimated that fully 700 out of 1,000 carpenters in Brisbane, Queensland, Australia, are unemployed, and only about a dozen out of eighty bricklayers are at present able to secure work.

At a conference recently of the United Mine Workers of America for the district comprising Montana and Wyoming it was agreed to accept the present scale of wages for another year. This action precludes any possibility of a strike on this score for another year.

The Foresters of America, in biennial convention at Buffalo, N. Y., unanimously adopted a resolution favoring exclusion of Japanese from the United States on the same lines as Chinese exclusion.

The commission appointed by Secretary Melcalf of the Department of Commerce and Labor to revise the present rules and regulations under which the immigration laws and the Chinese exclusion laws are administered, has sent a letter to all officials of the Immigration Bureau in the field asking for an expression of opinion on each of the rules now in operation.

Jamesville Daily Gazette, Thursday, September 14, 1865.—Robbery Near Magnolia Station.—Last night the house of Mr. Ward Witham, near Magnolia Station was entered, and a valuable gold watch and some $25 in money stolen. From certain indications Mr. W. thinks that whoever committed the robbery first drugged himself and wife. A generous reward is offered for the detection of the thief and recovery of the goods.

Disgraceful Rowdiness.—A number of drunken rowdies made night hideous by cries of murder and blasphemous imprecations, near the corner of Milwaukee and Jackson streets last night. The disturbance was so great as to arouse nearly all the people in that vicinity, and a number went out on the street to see if a crime was not being committed. Were it a solitary instance of the kind, it would not excite so much attention, but there is a class of drunken loafers who lie around in idleness during the day and turn night into a scene of bacchanalian revelry, ready for any kind of devilry that presents itself. It is about time a stop was put to this kind of a thing.

Bells.—Editors Gazette: We are partial to bells, and Jamesville is finely provided, having three very good ones. But we would modestly throw a criticism through your columns, to the bell ringers. Sunday morning we noticed a flaw or something that destroyed, to our ears, the good sound. There seems to be no method in the ringing. Where there are only three bells it would be much better to have some regularity in the tolling, and we suggest that some arrangement be made so as to have each sound separately, and not have one bell confuse the sound of another; it confuses discord. If it is intentionally done, then we plead most profound ignorance, and beg pardon for saying anything on the subject.

Most Respectfully Submitted, Jamesville, September 11, 1865.

"What a whopper!" has been the universal exclamation of those who have seen an apple left on our table by Mr. H. Jackson, and which he picked on a tree in his garden last evening. It weighed 32 ounces! We should have been glad to have kept it for exhibition, but it had begun to decay and we tried its flavor.

COMING Attractions

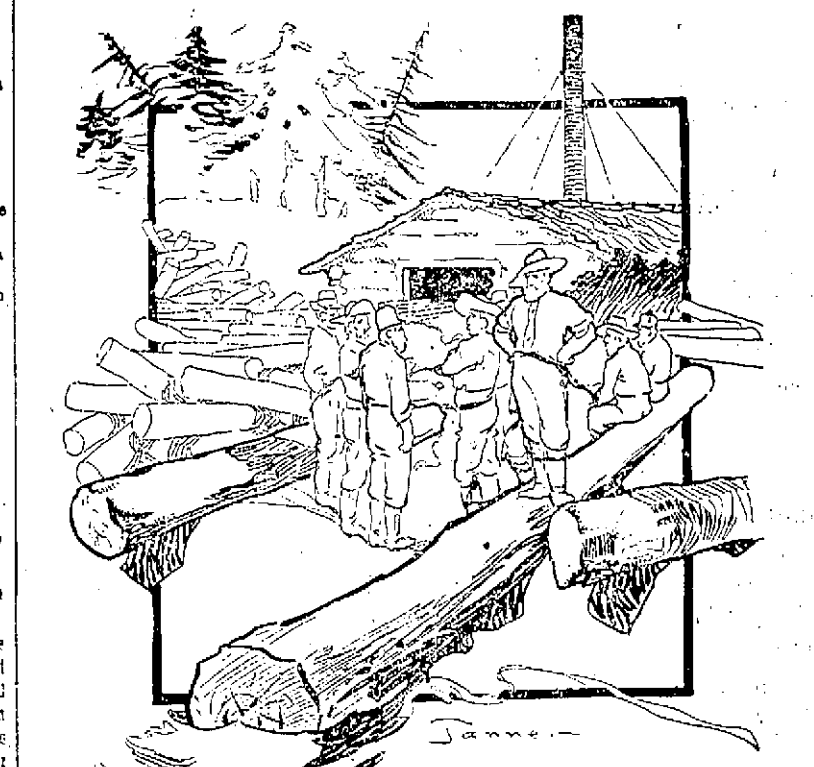

"Under Southern Skies" Few plays of recent years have secured such a strong hold upon public favor as has "Under Southern Skies," which comes to the Myers Grand Friday, Sept. 15, matinee and night, for the first time this season. The play is well remembered here from last season, the impression it then left being most favorable. Since it has most of the entire first and second acts are filled with life, gaiety and fun. The birthday party, in the first act, and the Halloween celebration which is the feature of the second act are replete with such natural, youthful fun and frolic that the audience seems to become a part of it and long to join in the merry-making and them-

seen here "Under Southern Skies" has appeared in many cities and always to large and enthusiastic audiences. Its reputation is now so well established that it has become almost unnecessary to print any eulogiums of the play and production, the mere announcement of the coming of the attraction being all that is necessary to draw a crowded house. This wonderful popularity is not hard to account for, for there is not a dull or uninteresting moment from the self. So deftly has the author worked her play that the audience is almost unaware of the fact that through all the fun-making, the story is shaping its front, until suddenly it leaps to the heart, gripping the attention, and holding them tense and fascinated with the denouement. The entire production this season will be quite up to, if indeed it does not surpass, the standard of excellence set last season. Matinee at 3 p. m.

"One must know one's own measure, and keep it in view." Just to specify: You know how big your store is—you know its measure: Does anyone in the city think it is smaller store than it is? The chances are if anyone does it is because you have been careless about keeping your store's measure "in view."

THE DAILY NEWSPAPER

"The newspaper is the daily bulletin of events. When reading a newspaper people are always in a news-receiving mood. They are in search of information. They want a definite knowledge of what is going on in a town, and before they get off at the depot they will have read the paper and have a good idea of the business, the politics, the police news and other things in the city. This is the time and place to add to their information that you have a new hotel, with 200 or 300 rooms, forty baths, two blocks from the postoffice, and that your rates are $3 to $4 per day. The newspaper is the place to look for such information, and the newspaper is the place for the advertisements of progressive hotel men.

"If there is any merit in cumulative effort, and we all know that there is, no advertisement can compare with a newspaper card. There can be no consecutive thought, in running out a bunch of cards now and then, or mailing blotters to other hotels to use on their registers or writing desks. If you buy 10,000 cards and 20,000 blotters every month at a large expense, you get a circulation equal to one day's advertising every month in a newspaper, and it costs you more.

"People want the newspapers. They don't want innumerable cards and blotters. They would not stop to pick up your card if they dropped it, or to read the name of your hotel before they filled a blotter with ink. But they would read like a cold north wind if they failed to secure their evening paper or if it was not delivered promptly. The newspaper you say, is cast aside in an hour, but it is there again the following day, repeating in its advertising columns precisely what it had the day before, and if a man spends an hour a day with his paper, he spends six hours a week with your advertisements before him. You can't get away from a newspaper advertisement any more than you can evade a newspaper reporter, and, like the poor, they are with us always."

This opinion from Newspaperdom was expressed by a hotel man at a recent convention in St. Paul. It is true to the letter. The hand bill and the card represent the poorest class of what is known as "one time advertising." The newspaper is "on the spot" six days in the week, and no class of news contained in the sheet is so generally read as the crisp up-to-date advertisement.

The man who distributes thoroughly five to ten thousand hand bills does it at an expense of from $40 to $50. The same amount of money invested in sending out the same matter in a newspaper would reach five times as many people and prove much more effective.

A NOTABLE ACHIEVEMENT.

Lawson began something more than a year ago to tell the public a number of things about a number of people, says the Wall Street Journal. The things that he told the public of the people, about whom he told them, were precisely the kind of things that the public likes to believe about precisely that kind of people. After twelve months and more of telling the people the kind of things that they want to believe, Lawson has managed to set the people asking one question. That question is, "How much of a liar is Lawson?" When you come to think of it, that is something of an achievement. Lawson is not the only man engaged in this kind of work. The country is loaded with a class of cantankerous, who find ready audiences because the masses like to be told that they are the under dog in the fight. These men denounce railroads and corporato wealth indiscriminately, and are applauded to the echo. Many people have come to believe that they live under the worst government in existence and that corruption is practiced so generally as to be regarded a virtue.

The governor of Wisconsin belongs to this class of malcontents. He tells the people that the party, which has honored him with high office, needs revolutionizing and reforming, and that his peculiar mission is to perform this work.

He declares that the railroads, which have contributed so largely to development and prosperity, have robbed the state. That a million years in Hades would not atone for the sins of John D. Rockefeller. He represents the class of men who sow the seeds of discord and unrest, the most dangerous element with which the country has to deal today.

Lawson has run his course and retired to the same hole from which he first emerged. The same fate awaits the men engaged in the same nefarious work.

The people are gradually coming to believe that they are not abused, and the fact is more generally recognized that the door of opportunity is wide open and inviting to every man who has a disposition to enter. America is not a land for pessimists, and the average citizen has a good stomach and is not troubled with despondency. The times are good, in fact never better. There is more honesty to the square mile than at any time in the history of the country. This is what makes the nation strong, for the great business enterprises of the country are based on confidence, and the success of every man in trade depends upon this same class of capital.

The Lawson's and men of his class who attempt to destroy this national bulwark, are enemies to the land which shelters them. They are obstructionists, in the great march of progress and the only place for them is back in the rear and dust of the procession.

It is hard to be a pessimist in a country where prosperity smiles on every hand, and where success crowns effort in rare degree. The calamity howler has no place on American soil in this year of our Lord, nineteen hundred and five.

PRESS COMMENT.

Marquette Eagle Star—The era of "wood feeling" which has begun in the Republican party in this state, would make angels weep.

Omaha World-Herald: In Sweden a plumber is called a "valetentninskantentreprenor." That is what a plumber ought to be called everywhere.

Eau Claire Leader: S-sh! Speak low. At the secret caucus held in Milwaukee this week Governor LaFollette is choosing the next candidate for governor.

Milwaukee Sentinel: "A drunken army is a national peril," declares the prohibition convention at Chicago. Right you are. So restore the canteen and put the dives on the fringe of army posts out of business.

Exchange: Persons who consider that King Edward sets the fashions may be interested in learning that at Marlborough his majesty promenades in a green Tyrolean hat adorned with the usual feather, a blue suit, with brown boots and a red tie.

Superior Telegram: It looks as if the theory that comes from Harvard university that the moon was formed from a big scoop of dirt from the Pacific ocean was intended to belittle the Panama canal work by comparison.

Eau Claire Leader: A funny man at an Oshkosh hotel on the last day of limit gathered up all the straw hats left by the guests, who were in for dinner, took them out on the sidewalk, poured oil over them and burned the whole lot. This was considered quite a joke in Oshkosh.

Sheboygan Journal: Property valuations in Wisconsin have gained the enormous sum of $109,858,000 during the last year. If the actual wealth increased as rapidly as the tax assessors sometimes imagine that it does, every one in the state should be taking a trip to Europe.

Chicago Record-Herald: Miss Dallas Texas has been granted a license to wed. She ought to marry Mr. Harvey Illinois, Mr. S. Antonio Texas or Mr. Hannibal Missouri. They are all good catches. Miss Jeannette Pennsylvania will be glad to serve as bridesmaid, and Mr. Sidney Ohio will do for best man. It will be a stately affair.

Evening Wisconsin: Elgin fixes the butter price of the country every Tuesday; yet yesterday's report from Elgin simply said: "Thirty tubs of butter, no sales; official firm, 21 cents." With no other commodity could the mere offering of thirty packages without sale fix the price throughout the country for the week. There is something suspiciously like a trust in this Elgin business. Or is it hypnotism?

Oshkosh Northwestern: There is really no reason to worry over the declaration of Dr. McArthur that "the Chautauqua societies can control the next presidential election." In the first place the Chautauqua societies might not select their presidential candidate from the class of men they have been putting forward as platform speakers and in the next place Dr. McArthur may not know what he is talking about.

Chicago Examiner: Governor LaFollette is a republican. The Examiner is a democratic newspaper. Nevertheless, we applaud his course, and we rejoice that from the statehouse at Madison he is going to the capitol at Washington.

Chicago Chronicle: When the scamps in Hearst's employ rejoice over a republican's election it is in order to ask if somebody is not deceived.

Appleton Post: "Turn the rascals out" is more than a mere shibboleth with President Roosevelt. It is his rigid practice. And it makes no difference whatever to him whether they are "our rascals" or the other party's. One and all have to go as soon as discovered. The president will have no other than honest, faithful, industrious and competent men in the public service and political influence can save no one who does not answer to these requirements.

Exchange: Mrs. Potter Palmer the distinguished Chicago widow, has succeeded fairly well in recognition of British royalty. That is to say, the Prince of Wales remarked to his aunt the other day with reference to her: "Mrs. Potter Palmer? Mrs. Potter Palmer? Who is she?" Mrs. Palmer may yet hope to fare as well as the British peasant who boasted to a companion that the king had actually spoken to him. Properly astonished, the latter inquired, "and what did he majesty say?" The answer was, "he told me to get out of the way and to be 'bloomin' quick about it."

Green Bay Gazette: Quietly and without the blare of trumpets Chief Collins, the newly appointed head of the Chicago police force, is revolutionizing that city. For years it has been one of the worst governed cities in the United States. Today the thugs, robbers, hold-up men and murderers are being hunted from one hiding place to another while many of them have been captured. The chief has been given free rein by the mayor and without politics or boodle entering into the work it is being done in a most thorough manner. From being one of the worst of the large cities it bids fair to be one of the best in the near future.

Exchange: A dispatch from London to the New York World revives the frequently and officially denied stories that a secret treaty has been made between the Emperor of Russia and Japan which provides that the former—not the empire—shall pay $500,000,000 indemnity to Japan within five years, less the amount which Russia will pay Japan for the care of Russian prisoners, viz: $100,000,000 as provided in the treaty of Portsmouth. The secret compact it is reported was made without the knowledge of the Russian and Japanese peace plenipotentiaries. The former emphatically denied the story immediately following its publication Saturday, but the Japanese envoys have maintained silence concerning it. The story may be true and what gives some color to this view is the fact that the revolt in Japan against the terms of peace adopted at the Portsmouth conference has suddenly subsided.

Fond du Lac Commonwealth: Those people who were disposed to doubt the statement made by Thomas W. Lawson, a few months ago, relative to the methods employed by certain large life insurance companies, have an opportunity now to make amends by acknowledging that the Boston man didn't paint the picture dark enough. The revelations in connection with the Equitable, have been public property for some time, but there are others. The New York Life has just had a particularly shady transaction uncovered, a deal which amounted to little less than a falsification of accounts in order that it might convince the Prussian government that it had no industrial stocks of a certain variety in its holdings. The impression prevails that further discoveries, equally sensational, may follow, and that other companies will be involved. The investigation by the New York legislative committee has been commenced and the indications are that it will be made in earnest. It is possible that its findings may constitute a new verification of the Lawson claims.

No Disillusion Likely.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat: The Washington Post, in referring to the fact that there has been no opposition party of any consequence in Virginia since Mahone's days of power, says that "there will be no real opposition party there, or in any other state between the Potomac and the Rio Grand between the Ohio and the gulf, until the republican party dissolves or the south is torn down and rebuilt." This may or may not be true. It has often been said by papers and politicians in the north, the south and the border states. But the chances are that it is not true. The republican party will not dissolve. It will carry many of the states of the south some day, though that day is not likely to be 1908 or 1912. And the south, in dropping into the republican line occasionally, is not going to tear itself down. If anybody had predicted immediately after Cleveland's victory in 1892 that the republican party would carry several of the old slave states in the succeeding presidential election he would have been laughed at. Yet the republicans elected governors in some of them in 1895, and carried Delaware, West Virginia, Maryland and Kentucky, in 1896. Though not all of those states have remained in the republican party ever since, some of them have, and they were re-enforced by another of the old slave states, Missouri, in 1904. If what remains of the old solid south is going to stay solid until the republican party dissolves, it will stick in that condition a long time.

Wilder Welcome to Methodists.

Madison State Journal: The Methodists have a conference in Madison this week and an important time it is. The state is divided into two districts: this is the annual gathering of the southern half. Bishop Wilson, a new man, formerly of Baltimore, is the most notable visitor; and there are the secretaries and officials of the boards and activities of the church.

Madison families should throw wide open their doors to receive the hundreds of clergy and others who come. It is a cold town in point of hospitality, for we are forever receiving strangers; and whereas in Oshkosh and Janesville and other places, the best families are glad to "receive" people, because they don't offend a distinguished man, in Madison fame is a drug on the market. Many of us wouldn't walk round the corner to see the Rajah of Nador; or the man who invented the safety bicycle. But it is more than an honor to welcome these good men and women who make Methodism a living power in the world; it is an opportunity.

In an ideal home there will be a room open by day and night to those who labor not for the rewards of this world. We would rather have a child come under the personality of some self-effacing, cheery, penitential worker in the city slums than to have him chum with millionaires or sleep with congressional leaders.

If you live in a nice home with ornamental hardware on the front door and fixed washbasins in the basement, let the committee of the Methodist church know you would like a guest or two—some preacher and his wife from a small town, preferred. And give 'em chicken to eat—all second joints. It's the acceptable dish for conference time.

The visitors will do you good. They will tell you of the life of the people, their hopes and aspirations. They will speak of the Almighty as if He were still alive and of the Devil as if he were up on the Market Square, and no mistake. If you are lucky in your Methodist—if he has a deep chest, and a clear eye and carries his bible in plain sight under his arms and has a laugh like a blacksmith, the notion down at your house that religion is for women and children will fade away. We always wish we ran a hotel when "Conference" comes to town.

OFFICERS ACCUSE MAN OF SERIES OF CRIMES

Calvin Young Reed Is Said to Have Deserted Wife and Wed Another Who Died Mysteriously.

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 14.—Bigamy and murder are the charges against Calvin Young Reed, who was arrested at the Capitol hotel.

If the theories of the detectives are correct the case is one of unusual interest. Reed is suspected of having deserted a woman whom he is thought to have married in Indiana twenty years ago to marry another, and to have poisoned this woman, whom he married, and who was Mrs. Mary Borgmeier, a widow with an estate of $40,000.

The detectives say that Reed married Mrs. Borgmeier Feb. 22, having persuaded his first wife to return to her home in Indiana, with the understanding he had secured employment as a traveling salesman and that he would send her $15 a week.

The circumstances of the death of Mrs. Mary Borgmeier were these: Tuesday evening Mrs. Borgmeier was taken ill and Dr. Christopher G. Schott was summoned. He found her suffering from cramps, injected a quarter of a grain of morphine, and left, telling Reed to summon him if the patient should develop alarming symptoms. Dr. Schott was not called again, but the next morning he voluntarily called to see Mrs. Reed. She was low and shortly afterward expired.

HISTORY THAT IS NOT HISTORICAL

Statements Regarding James, the Pioneer, and the Original Title to King Property Are Questioned.

Early history of Rock county appears to have suffered somewhat at the hands of modern narrators. Attention has been called to inaccuracies in some of the statements regarding the King corner property appearing in the account of the transfer a few days ago. By an act of the territorial legislature, approved Dec. 27, 1837, part of the northwest quarter of Section 35, Town 3 north of Range 12 east, was designated as the seat of justice. The King corner is said to have been included in this portion of land. After the county was organized in 1839 a board of county commissioners consisting of E. J. Hazzard, William Spaulding, and W. S. Murray were elected, already empowered to secure possession for the county of the land that had been designated. The lands on the eastern side of the river were brought into the market by a public sale in Milwaukee in 1839. Amicable arrangements were doubtless made with the "squatters" who had taken possession of a large part of the territory heretofore, and afterwards secured title. But Horace McDermoy who is familiar with the records in the register of deeds' office is authority for the statement that this strip of territory was a part entered by the commissioners, that government plat to them as such and that the plat was subsequently made by Hazzard and Murray. This, obviously, does not harmonize with the statement that the land was originally pre-empted by John Spaulding from the government and deeded to the county as a bonus for locating the county seat in Janesville. Henry F. Jones, pioneer whom the city was named, appears to have been but a "squatter" and never to have secured title from the government to a square inch of land in the county. When he offered warranty deeds to the father of Register of Deeds George Stoner of Madison as inducement for locating here in the year 1837, he was therefore offering something which he was not able, at that time at least, to deliver. The only people who actually had title to any land in Rock county in those days appear to have been non-resident speculators whose manipulations had antedated the advent of the pioneers.

SHOW EFFECTS OF THE TUBERCULOSIS

Many Farmers in Milwaukee Witnessed the Work of State Veterinarian Robert Roberts.

Several hundred farmers witnessed the slaughter of five cows affected with tuberculosis at 1:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon on a platform erected back of the stock superintendent's office on the State fair grounds in Milwaukee. The killing was done under the direction of State Veterinarian E. D. Roberts and Prof. H. L. Russell of the University of Wisconsin. Before the first animal was killed Prof. Russell gave a lecture upon the cause and effects of the disease. He explained at length the tuberculin test, which, he said, could be applied to the cows owned by every farmer in the state. It was shown that a large percentage of cases of tuberculosis among hogs came from feeding the animals skimmed milk procured from creameries supplied from herds of cattle affected with the disease. Prof. Russell stated that it was believed that a state law for the pasteurization of all skim milk from creameries would be of great benefit to farmers. Each of the five cows killed showed the effects of tuberculosis. In some the infections had only affected one part of the body, but several had tubercular enlargements of the mediastinal and retroperitoneal glands and tubercular tissue in the intestines. Only four of the five animals killed had been subjected to test for tuberculosis. The fifth was donated by its owner without a test. The cow was emaciated and in a generally bad condition, and, upon being slaughtered, proved to be the worst case of the five. All the glands affected were enlarged to ten and twenty times their normal size and were filled with tuberculous matter. The demonstration was a strong plea for the universal adoption by farmers of the tuberculin test.

SAID ABOUT BOSTON WOMEN.

They do not live. They have so many theories at their tongues' end. They have not lived.

The Boston woman does not study herself sufficiently. She is either too indifferent or too vain.

Some of them are so ephemeral. There is the woman class who plan for people what shall be done for children, how they shall live and how little spend.

There is the frivolous, empty-headed class. Boston women need to learn the law of harmony. She wears an assortment of colors which makes her look like a harlequin tea—a Parisian salad.

MISSION WORK IS THE SUBJECT

BEING DISCUSSED BY LUTHER LEAGUE CONVENTION.

CLOSES WITH A RECEPTION

At St. Peter's Church This Evening—
Over Twenty-Five Delegates Are Attending Sessions.

Rev. William Eckert, pastor of the Church of the Holy Communion at Racine, opened the business session of the Luther League of Wisconsin at St. Peter's English Evangelical Lutheran church last evening. Rev. Gustav Stearns of Milwaukee preached a strong and eloquent sermon on "Paul's Vision," taking as his text II Corinthians, Chap. 12, verses 1 to 9. The discourse was concerned with the vision, the temptation, and Paul's defense—the grace of God sufficient for him. An anthem was rendered by the choir.

Scriptural Basis for Missions
Rev. W. K. Frick, D. D., pastor of the Church of the Redeemer, Milwaukee, delivered an address on "The Scriptural Basis of Foreign Missions," justifying their existence and supporting passages from the old and new testament which showed the purpose of God to save both Gentile and Jew. The first of these was the promise to Abraham that in his seed all the nations should be blessed. The book of Jonah was quoted as the missionary book of the old testament and the messianic psalms and prophecies were alluded to as missionary in character. At Jesus' birth Gentiles from the east paid him homage and Simeon declared him the Light of the Gentiles. Christ, himself, gave as His missionary program, this, in all nations: "Go, make disciples of all nations." The Acts constitute the missionary book of the New Testament. The eminent apostle, Paul, was the apostle to the Gentiles and the Christian church of the first century was a world-wide church. The sacred canon ends with the invitation: "Whoever will, let him take of the water of life freely," and Jesus gives us a vision of the throne of God surrounded by all peoples, and nations, and tongues.

This Morning's Session
After the devotional service, this morning Rev. H. K. Gebhart of Plattville took up and answered certain objections to foreign missions which are being continually raised. The fact that the subject was seldom presented without being coupled with an appeal for funds, he said, was responsible for some of the antipathy. It could be overcome by frequent discussion of mission work when there was no call for donations. The argument that "heavenly rewards should be allowed to keep their own religions seemed to him to have little ground to stand on and he combated the assumption that "it matters not what a man believes so long as he is sincere in that belief." The person who eats poisonous mushrooms believing them to be edible will not escape the effects of the poison by reason of his faith. The woman of India who throws her babe to the crocodiles may be sincere in the belief that the sacrifice is pleasing to the god she worships. There could be no substitute for the Gospel. The home and foreign fields were inseparably bound together and the argument that the heathen and infidels at home should be taken care of first could have no weight. Rev. George Keller, Brecht of Milwaukee discussed "Foreign Missionary Literature."

Reception This Evening
The afternoon meeting opened with a devotional service, conducted by Rev. M. H. Hegge of Stoughton. Four sub-divisions of the general topic, "The Lutheran Fatherlands in Foreign Mission Work," were discussed. Mrs. G. E. Nasset of Janesville read a paper on "Germany," written by Mrs. P. E. Baister of Kenosha; Peter Anderson of Madison discussed "Norway;" George Rappaport of Milwaukee told of Sweden's work; J. K. Jensen of Janesville outlined the efforts being put forth by Denmark. Rev. William Passavant from a visit in Elkhart, Ohio, and elsewhere, will officiate at the altar this evening during the vesper which commences at eight o'clock. Subdivisions of the topic, "What the Lutherans in America Are Doing for Foreign Missions," will be discussed by Rev. William Eckert of Racine, who will take up the work in India and Africa; Mrs. Thore Eggen of Madison who will deal with Madagascar and China; and C. A. Dennig of Cedarburg who will discuss the efforts in Japan. A reception for the visitors will be given immediately after the close of this discussion.

Names of the Delegates
The roster of delegates and visitors here is as follows: Milwaukee—Rev. W. K. Frick, D. D., Mrs. Lillian Frick, Oxborrow, and Geo. W. Rapp; Stoughton—the Misses Maria and Helga Swan; Plattville—Rev. H. K. Gebhart, and Mrs. Inez Albers; Kenosha—Rev. P. E. Baister, Herman Martin, and Ferdinand Jensen; Mount Horeb—Rev. H. H. Holte, Otto Dahle, and Edward Mitchell; Cedarburg—Student C. A. MORNING WEDDING AT CATHOLIC PARSONAGE

John B. Gsell and Rosa M. Rice Wed-
ded by Rev. Father Goebel
This Morning.

John B. Gsell and Rosa M. Rice, second daughter of Ezra Rice of this city, were quietly married this morning at 8 o'clock at St. Mary's parsonage. The couple were attended by Miss Lillian Rice and George McPhillips. The bride looked exceedingly charming in a gray silk traveling gown, and carried white roses. A wedding breakfast was served after the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents on Magnolia avenue. Many beautiful presents testified to the regard in which the two are held by their friends. The couple left on the 10:30 train for Milwaukee and Chicago and will be at home after Oct. 1st in their cozy flat at 10 South Jackson street.

PICKERING BOY IS GIVEN HIS LIBERTY

With the Understanding That His Record Must Be Above Suspicion Henceforth.

Willie Pickering, the young man who was captured in William Scofield's meat market last Thursday evening, appeared in municipal court this morning and pleaded guilty to the theft of a small sum of money from the cash drawer. The boy's record has been looked up during the time he has been in confinement and the court was convinced that this was his first offense. As he is over sixteen years of age it would have been impossible to sentence him to the industrial school at Waukesha and the Green Bay reformatory and the state's prison were the only alternatives. Neither William Scofield nor Charles Schaller, at whose place of business the boy was employed, wished him punished in that manner and the latter, in fact, offered to give the lad a job if sentence were not passed. After considering the matter in its various aspects Judge Fifield decided to adjourn the case two months and the prosecutor was released with the understanding that if at any time his behavior should be otherwise than exemplary he would be brought back into court and given the sentence provided by law.

INDIAN UNEARTHED WITH PLOUGHSHARE

Bones of a Tall Red-Man Brought to Light Monday on Carcajou Club
Premises at Lake Koshkonong.

While ploughing on the farm where the Carcajou Club's headquarters are located at Lake Koshkonong Monday the tenant of the farm turned up the bones of an Indian who had doubtless found his last resting place there a century or more ago. Measurements taken by H. L. Skavlem showed the aborigine to have been over six feet tall in life. The bones, constituting the framework of the body had almost disintegrated but the skull was still intact and the teeth were perfect, none missing. The discovery was made in a little gully that had been washed out by the rains.

TOADSTOOL NOT THE EDIBLE MUSHROOM

Mrs. Andrew Pond Mistook Shaggy
Tops for Succulent Mushroom—Seriously Ill.

Yesterday afternoon Mrs. Andrew Pond, Mrs. Dr. Judd, Mrs. Frank Baach and Mrs. T. O. Howe went on a mushroom expedition. Several large specimens were secured including some of the species supposed to be "Shaggy Tops," these Mrs. Pond took to her home being sure they were good edible mushrooms. Two experts in the fungus lore pronounced the specimens edible and she cooked one for herself in a separate dish. Shortly after eight she was taken with severe pains and for three hours two physicians worked over her until she was pronounced out of danger. The other ladies did not eat any of the "shaggy tops" and suffered no inconvenience.

Mushrooms Not Poisonous: Horace McElroy says that the mushrooms reported to have poisoned certain Janesville parties last evening were of an entirely variety belonging to the family of morels and known as the pastinac or parasol mushroom. He thinks there should be some discrimination between acute indigestion and poisoning. Some people can never eat certain perfectly good varieties of the fungi without suffering discomfort and there are others who can eat them sometimes but are made ill by them at others. The parasol is a perfectly good mushroom and in this instance he examined the specimens very carefully to make certain that they were parasols and not a new, poisonous variety resembling them, but having shorter stems and green instead of red gills, which are spreading over the country this year. The new noxious variety is known as the Uplata Morgani and one specimen of it has been found hereabouts by Halvor Skavlem.

SYNDICATES GET STOCK BUSINESS

Treasurer of Mutual Life Company Tells How Securities Are Handled.

MUST HAVE HELP OF BANKERS

Big Concerns Are Dependent Upon Financial Institutions When It Comes to Making Large Deals on a Profitable Basis.

New York, Sept. 14.—Frederic Cromwell, treasurer of the Mutual Life Insurance company, explained in detail to the Armstrong legislative insurance committee his participation in the underwriting syndicates in which the Mutual Life had been interested at the same time. Mr. Cromwell submitted a statement acknowledging that he had been a member of not less than sixteen of these syndicates, in which the Mutual Life had also been a participant. His statement covered only the transactions of the last five years.

Mr. Cromwell's aggregate profits from these syndicate participations in the five years amounted to $26,371.52. In most cases the Mutual Life, besides being a member of the syndicates of which the company's treasurer was interested, was also a regular purchaser of securities from the syndicate managers, thus contributing profits which were distributed among the syndicate participants, Mr. Cromwell included.

Trust Companies Profit.

It also was shown that in several instances the syndicate participations which had been offered the Mutual Life had been allotted in part to trust companies in which the Mutual Life, as well as its officers and trustees, were large shareholders. The reason given for these allotments to trust companies was that it was decided to the interest of the Mutual Life to have these institutions successful business concerns, but the fact was admitted that stockholders of these companies other than the Mutual Life also got their pro rata share of the profits.

The fact also developed that the New York Life Insurance company has at various times entered into joint account with bankers for the purchase of securities; that it furnished all the money necessary for the transactions, held the securities at its own risk, and then divided the profits of the holdings. The bankers paid interest on the money which the insurance company advanced for the transaction. The defense of the New York Life's officers was that the company needed the facilities which the bankers could furnish for disposing of the securities.

Must Deal With Syndicate.

Treasurer Cromwell of the Mutual Life, when he took the witness stand, asked permission to preface his testimony with a few words of explanation of the Mutual's syndicate transactions. "I want," said he, "to say that there is nothing we have to conceal. Participation in syndicates by the company has been a necessity. The law of combination in finance has been brought necessarily to the attention of life insurance companies. Twenty years ago it was quite possible for us to buy from bond dealers, but now it is absolutely impossible to buy advantageously large blocks of securities, except as they are floated by these combinations of capital, popularly called syndicates, and we have to go into them to get our investments, to get them in sufficient size at 'ground floor' prices. We could not make our investments without syndicates, and we are partners in every syndicate which we go into."

Mr. Hughes, counsel for the legislative committee, said that Mr. Cromwell's remarks suggested an interesting line of inquiry. He asked: "Great effort on the part of your company and other large companies to roll up new business, increase the surplus and so get gigantic amounts of money forces you into these syndicate operations if you are to find opportunity to invest the funds that have been accumulated?"

The witness said that was his idea, except that the Mutual had no surplus.

It is intended that the demonstration shall be entirely of an informal character, without parade or speechmaking, only an assembling of the citizens of Washington on Pennsylvania avenue to greet the president as he rides from the railroad station to the white house. It was originally proposed that the reception should be more formal, and in recognition of the president's termination, but the simpler plan is believed to be more nearly in accord with the wishes of the president.

Chinese Sage Disliked Growing Old, But Wanted to Live a Long Time.

Kang Yue Wei, the Chinese reformer, was describing the hardships that are undergone for reform's sake in China, says the Chicago Chronicle. "But reform," he said, "is never brought about except with suffering. They who carry the torch of progress make targets of themselves. Reform and persecution walk hand in hand. It is always so. It is the only way. You remember our Chinese sage, Chang Wu? Chang Wu found one day among his disciples a beautiful princess. She had come to propound certain questions to the sage, but the old man's great age, his manifold infirmities shocked her. She forgot her questions, and kneeling, she gazed at Chang Wu in silence. "Daughter," said Chang Wu, smiling, "why do you regard me so strangely?" "The princess flushed and murmured confusedly: 'O father, do you not find it very unpleasant to grow old?' " "Yes, very," Chang Wu answered. "But is there any other way of living a long time?"

Duties of Football Players

Ends Must Get Down Field Quickly on Kicks. Tackles Break Up Opponents' Plays—Backs Must Be Strong Runners—Avoid Fumbling.

The duties of the various members of a football eleven should be thoroughly understood by the respective players before actual practice of plays is begun. Plainly, unless a man has a trustworthy knowledge of his special responsibilities he will not do intelligent work in practice.

The two ends should be taught by the captain and coaches to get down the field quickly when their team kicks off. It is their particular duty to "down" the man who catches the ball, although the other members of the team are, in a general way, bent on the same errand.

In case of a kick from a formation for a scrimmage by their own team the ends must also get down the field to prevent an opponent from running the ball runners. Therefore they must be the fastest runners on the eleven, and sure, hard tacklers.

The tackles are depended on to break up plays aimed at their positions and at the ends. They must be strong men and able tacklers. They are frequently called on to run with the ball. A. De Witt, Princeton's famous ex-captain, was a tackle and one of the best ground gainers that ever played on a college team.

The guards must be heavy men. Their duties are to make the center of their team impregnable and to break through their opponents' line and to stop advancing plays. Guards should crouch low in the line and push opponents aside to make holes in the line to let their (the guards) runners through.

The center rush should be the heaviest man on the team. His duties are similar to those of the guards, and in addition he passes the ball back in scrimmages, putting it into play.

The quarterback is the field general. He receives the ball from the center and passes it to the man who is to carry it. He gives the signals and largely decides on what plays shall be used. He should stand facing the front, not sideways, when receiving the ball from the center. He should be very quick and accurate in handling the ball.

The halfbacks, as they carry the ball most frequently, should be strong, fast runners. They should carry the ball under either arm and pressed close into the ribs. The free arm should be used to ward off attacks. When attackers approach on the right side, halfbacks should carry the ball under the left arm, the one farthest from the attackers, and vice versa.

The fullback is depended on primarily to "buck center" when his team has the ball. He is of great value in pushing and pulling fellow runners through the opposing line and in making kicking for the team.

The fullback and the halves should be careful not to fumble when receiving the ball from the quarterback.

Busy George Ade.

Rapid Fire Dramatist Holds Long Distance Writing Record.

From Our New York Dramatic Correspondent

George Ade, the champion rapid fire playwright of the world, having reduced himself to writing weight, is now turning out new plays with his characteristic alacrity. Henry W. Savage recently produced "The Bad Samaritan," Charles Frohman has received Mr. Ade's latest, "Just Out of College," and the Keith vanderbilt circuit recently put on a comedy sketch which Mr. Ade flashed off in an odd hour. And he is planning still another play, so it is said.

It is to his ability of writing terse, epigrammatic lines that much of George Ade's success as a dramatist is due. In the "Sho-Gun," now on tour, which the humorist wrote in conjunction with Gustav Linder, composer of "The Prince of Idlers" and "Woodland," Mr. Ade has put many sparkling lines. Here are a few taken at random from the manuscript:

"The hand that cradles the rocks is the one that rules the world."

"A trust is a large body of money entirely surrounded by water."

"America is a land where money grows on bushes, and a fence around every bush."

"When a widow and a lawyer put their heads together, nothing is impossible."

"Early to bed and early to rise—and you'll never meet any prominent people."

"A widow is the cornerstone of every chafing dish party."

"Some people are made directors for the same reason that parsley is put on fish."

The two companies playing Mr. Ade's comedy, "The College Widow," are having remarkable success. The western company is now at the State-baker theater, in Chicago, playing to absolute capacity, while the eastern organization is enjoying the same conditions at the Tremont theater in Boston.

The first presentation on any stage of "The Bad Samaritan" took place recently in Washington at the Columbia theater. "The Bad Samaritan" is a new play of American life and depicts with a self constituted philanthropist whose efforts to do good are all misconstrued; hence the amusing contradictory title.

UNIFORM AUTO LAWS.

Motorists to Urge Federal Legislation to Regulate Speed.

When the Automobile Club of America and the Automobile association take up the question of legislation this fall a determined effort will be made to secure some kind of a federal law which will be a model for legislation in the various states instead of having the wide divergence of laws now in effect. Particular attention will be directed toward securing a national law which can be followed by the states and which will require the registration of a car in only one state.

During the past year fourteen states which previously had no statutes affecting the use of automobiles have passed laws on the subject, and five states have passed new laws. Like every new innovation, such as the railroad, the trolley and the bicycle, there is bound to be some unjust legislation which in time will be brought to a greater degree of fairness.

The matter of speed is one that will always be a state right and, in most cases, a matter of local ruling, although the laws of many states, like New York, for instance, which state the minimum speed for power driven machines, are sure to be in favor.

Not So Polite After All.

In London recently the motor car drivers were surprised to note the politeness of the London "bobbies" who gracefully raised their caps every time a machine passed. It was a trick, however, and the raising of the cap was a signal from one bobby to another, so that the time of the cars could be taken.

How To Make Children Healthy

Proper Care, Clean Teeth, Clean Skins, Healthful Stomachs, Plain, Wholesome Food.

The life of man or woman are more often than not the result of improper care or training in childhood. The child does not know, and the parent is too often careless or negligent and for this the child must suffer through grown-up years.

How often do you see a child who uses the tooth brush properly, yet many a misshapen mouth comes from bad teeth. This is only one instance.

How many parents study what their children should eat. Many cases of children are caused by wrong food. A gentleman, the publisher of a well-known magazine, came into my office the other day and in speaking of these matters said: "Our little girl was badly constipated. We finally took her to a well-known sanitarium and they told us that the breakfast food we had been using were of a considerable extent the cause. We tried several of those recommended by the doctor at the sanitarium, but the child didn't like them, although she improved somewhat in health. She always was fonder of Malta-Vita than any other breakfast food so we got her that. She enjoyed it and after using it a short time she was completely rid of the trouble."

Now the people who make Malta-Vita do not advertise it as a cure for constipation, but they do claim and with facts to back them that it is the most perfect natural food on the market, and used regularly will restore to normal condition any person who is suffering from derangement of the digestive apparatus and besides it is just the best you ever tasted.

Wheat has in it all of the elements of the human body. Wheat makes meat. Hutchinson, the great British food expert, says that proteins, water and a little mineral salt will build tissue and nothing else will. Wheat is rich in proteins, almost 10 per cent, and Malta-Vita is the whole of the wheat. That's why Malta-Vita makes muscle. Malta-Vita also makes blood, bone and nerve force because it is all of the wheat and prepared in such a way that it is quickly absorbed by the blood. Malta-Vita is now 10 cents at all grocers.

I had an affection of the skin on my face, caused from the burning oil about the engine and dynamo. My face itched and annoyed me, and rubbing it only made it worse and made it sore. I could hardly stand shaving for the skin broke and bled. A few applications of Doan's Ointment removed the itching and healed up my face in a few days. Mother's Friend Retain Your Youthful Figures.

To be beautiful is to be loved by all. If there lives the woman who is indifferent to this she is yet to be heard of. Yet from time immemorial society has recognized what they thought to be a detriment in the way of such a realization. The bearing of children has meant to them the marring of physical beauty of figure, without which beauty of face would be of little account. Nothing could be more remote from truth than this; childbirth is purely a natural phenomenon, accompanied by pain, to be sure, but if properly managed no more harmful in its effects upon the human form divine than any other natural function.

MOTHER'S FRIEND

Is essential in the proper management of every case of labor; it relaxes and softens the abdominal muscles, thereby enabling them to sustain the stretching that they must undergo, and from this very fact it facilitates their return to normal proportions after childbirth, and it is obvious that pain must be greatly lessened from this very reason.

It is a liniment, it is harmless, it is potent, it is priceless in its results. It is Mother's Friend. $1.00 per bottle at drug stores. Our book of priceless value sent free to all women.

"AUDACITY--- AUDACITY AGAIN--- AND AUDACITY ALWAYS!"

This phrase, once used to describe the characters and methods of the men who directed the French Revolution, has been made into a pretty well-fitted cap for the American business man. Europeans give it as the creed of the American "Captain of Industry."

Here, among ourselves, when a merchant raises a little trade commotion—when he turns a dull or normal season into a busy and profitable one through a spurt of enterprise, making an "over stock" of goods vanish in "jigtime," all through a surprising and unexpected campaign of newspaper advertising, his competitors merely remark that "he's got his nerve with him!" and begin to form quiet plans for making his "spurt" look slow.

But they realize that "Audacity," yoked always with publicity, must be their chief reliance; that this pair of forces must pull all enterprises out of the ruts—must make the bigger store inevitable—bigger expenses a matter of course—bigger net profits possible.

When he first tries to drive Publicity and Audacity as a team, the merchant has his misgivings of a runaway. He has visions of being picked up by the Sheriff, and of being sent to the "Foolish Hospital." And, once in a thousand times, this happens—but not much oftener than that.

The merchant who has never taken the chance of doing things which require nerve and courage will remain a "small store-keeper," as well as the keeper of a small store—and these two things are not quite the same, you must admit—until he acquires enough audacity to determine to "break loose" and start after the leaders.

GALL STONES.

I recently gave you a talk on Jaundice, and the subject of Gall Stones is so closely allied that they should be discussed at about the same time.

The accumulation of hardened bile within the gall-bladder or bile duct is technically called "Biliary Calculi." Persons in middle life and old age are most liable, especially those who are of a bilious temperament, who have lived in malarial sections, or who have been troubled by constipation or liver troubles, or who have eaten largely of animal foods. Their origin may be due to simply drying out (inspiration) of the bile, altered characteristics of the fluid or accumulation about a nucleus of mucous or other material. The size of the stones vary from that of a grain of wheat to that of a hickory nut. If large, there are rarely more than two or three present, and if very small, there may be 200. They usually develop very slowly, and give but little trouble until they commence to be evacuated, when they irritate the passages or become lodged in the gall duct.

The symptoms of gall stones are not hard to recognize by a physician of experience, although mistakes are frequently made. The paroxysms of pain which occur when the gall stones are striving to leave the bladder are excruciating in character and very exhausting. They may come on regularly every few days or weeks or months. Sometimes they result in evacuations, and at other times the calculi are unable to pass through the duct. An attack commences with dull pain under the right ribs, usually after eating or exertion. The pain soon grows sharp and intense, of a gripping and boring character, extending to the abdomen and shoulder. There may be vomiting of food and mucus, and occasionally chills and convulsions, but no fever. The face is pale, and when the calculi become fastened in the passages there will be jaundice; often the whole surface of the body is cold and covered with perspiration.

Such symptoms may last for hours or for days before the stones are evacuated, and then when they enter the small intestine (duodenum) the pain suddenly ceases and the jaundice disappears and intense relief is experienced, although there is great prostration and weakness. Occasionally a gall stone may be of such a large size or of such roughened character as to become firmly lodged in the duct, and thus cause suppuration and death, unless surgical interference is prompt.

Gall stones are usually green or brown, but may be varied in color. They may be soapy and greasy to the touch, or hard or friable; they may be round or flat or oval, and smooth or roughened or warty. A very small angular calculus may cause great pain, and one large one may be followed by numerous small ones. The discharges from the bowels after a paroxysm should be carefully searched for the gall stones.

The simplest, safest and most effective method of home treatment is somewhat similar to that which was given in Club Notes some weeks ago and consists in drinking one wineglassful of sweet oil—pure olive oil is pleasant to take—at bedtime. This should be followed the next morning with a cathartic, such as seltzer powders or cream of tartar and phosphate of soda, teaspoonful each morning in a wineglassful of water. This system should be continued for several weeks until relief is experienced by the passing of the stones.

In addition to the above there should be placed over the region of the liver, a large fomentation of lobelia seed and flax seed, equal parts, keeping it hot or at least warm for an hour or two, especially during an acute attack. This fomentation relaxes the tissues and makes it easier for the stones to pass out.

After the stones have passed out of the body, new ones will form unless the bowels are kept open and the Home Health Club methods of avoiding bilious attacks are rigidly followed.

CLUB NOTES.

Mrs. J. K. M. Illinois: I would advise you to send directly to the secretary of the Illinois state board of health and ask for a copy of a pamphlet issued by the board, free, upon the subject of "Infant Feeding." The pamphlet is a very valuable one for mothers or anyone having the care of infants or young children, and I think the state of Illinois is making a move in the right direction when it sends out such pamphlets without charge to the mothers.

Lamont.—Dr. David H. Reeder, LaPorte, Ind.—Dear Doctor: My record number in the Club is 5,949, and I am a constant reader of the Home Health Club lectures. I would like to ask you in regard to the benefits of the galvanic battery.

I am troubled with rheumatism, and it has been recommended to me as a remedy. I have tried almost every other remedy. Many have helped only for a short time. My rheumatism is inflammatory. I have read with great interest all that your lectures have advised in regard to rheumatism. Am 70 years old, and have been troubled with this more or less for a good many years. My feet and ankles swell, but the swelling is all gone in the morning. I live on a farm, have but little to do, eat meat once a day, have plenty of fruit and vegetables; also have what is considered good well water. The water is very hard. I occasionally drink coffee, but no tea. Seldom eat a piece of pie or cake. I do not neglect bathing.

Any advice which you may see fit to give me will be thankfully received.—E. A. B.

When electricity is properly applied by one who understands it, it is nearly always beneficial, although there are some cases in which it does not seem to have any effect. Therefore, unless you are familiar with the use of both the galvanic and faradic batteries, I would not recommend you to use them. If, however, you have a physician who is skillful in their use, it is all right.

Inflammatory rheumatism will generally give way quite readily with the use of the Schuessler tissue remedies. These are inexpensive, and can do you no possible harm. However, in your case, it is wise to build up the general system and increase the activity of the organs of elimination by the use of the good old-fashioned herb remedies. In your case, the use of the compound gentian sirup would be best. The formula for it has been given a number of times in these columns, so I presume you are familiar with it. It is especially good for one of your age, because it will increase the activity of the kidneys, and in that way reduce the swelling in the feet and ankles. It is wise to drink an abundance of water between the meals, but not while eating. The fact that you have access only to hard water is probably the cause of your rheumatism. If you could have this water slightly heated, and then filtered through a sand and charcoal filter, it would be much better, because it takes out a great deal of the lime. A better way would be to have it distilled with a distilling apparatus which you can easily procure, and better still, drink fresh buttermilk instead of water. I trust you will be benefited by my suggestions.

Elmwood.—Dr. David H. Reeder, LaPorte, Ind.—Dear Sir: I am a reader of this paper and am especially interested in the health items which you contribute. Doctor, I write to know if there is anything that will cure one of snoring. I am a woman 49 years of age, and have very good health, but the fact that I snore annoys me terribly. I notice if I fall asleep lying on my side, my breathing is all right, but whenever I sleep lying on my back I am sure to snore. Hoping you may be able to cure me of this very annoying habit, I remain, respectfully, K. Z.

I can tell you how to make a little device for preventing the habit of snoring, which is quite effective. Make a little knit cap something like the shape of the heel of a sock, and fasten it under the chin and up over the head with an elastic band, so as to keep the mouth closed while sleeping. This is the whole secret, for when the mouth is closed snoring does not occur.

Maine.—Dr. David H. Reeder, LaPorte, Ind.—Dear Doctor: I was advised to use ten drops of Fowler's Solution in a glassful of water during the day, taking only a sip at a time. It helped me very much, and I felt no ill effects. I advised a friend to do so, as I knew of another person that had been helped; but the druggist said he would not dare give so much. I find she is in a delicate condition, and I hasten to ask you if you think it safe. Very truly yours.—Record No. 1259.

I do not approve of administering Fowler's Solution of Arsenic under any circumstances. It is true, there is many a case in which it acts the same as it did yours, but the after effects are sometimes worse than the original disease. There are many other methods which will bring about the same result without danger. Especially would I advise against the use of it in the case of your friend at the present time. I would suggest that she read the lecture on "Motherhood," which was recently published, as it will probably prove valuable to her.

All readers of this publication are at liberty to write for any information pertaining to the subject of health. Address all communications to the Home Health Club, or Dr. David H. Reeder, LaPorte, Ind., with name and address in full, and at least four cents in postage.

How Warships Deteriorate.

The costlier the warship the quicker, apparently, she has to be consigned to the scrap pile. Formerly a good wooden ship would last in active service for many years. Some of the earlier iron ships have also remained long on the navy list, but the life of the average modern ship is not lengthy. Within 10 or 12 years after being first commissioned she is usually out of date and so deteriorated that it costs more to rehabilitate and modernize the vessel than she is worth. Our present navy of steel ships had its beginning not over 20 years ago, and already some of the earlier ships are so deteriorated that they are either being relegated to receiving ship service or retired altogether.

Owed to the Trolley.

How much we owe to the trolley lines extending so freely into even remote sections! At an expenditure which must seem modest even to the poor they give the poor dwellers in towns and villages the freedom of the woods and fields, and to the denizens of hitherto inaccessible country places they offer the strange allurements of busy streets and shops. In our great cities rural visitors take the places of those who are seeking the very pleasures the countryman temporarily forsakes. It is the change we need—the new ways, even when they are less attractive than the old.

Oysters, even after they have been brought away from the sea, know by instinct the exact hour when the tide is rising and approaching their beds, and so, of their own accord, open their shells to receive their food from the sea, as if still at home.

A CITY'S FARM COLONY

Municipal Project of Cleveland to Help the Needy.

VAST TRACT OF LAND PURCHASED

On Thirteen Hundred Acres a Number of Suitable Buildings Will Be Erected For the Poor of the City—When Desirable, Each Individual Will Be Given a Small Plot For Cultivation.

The city of Cleveland, O., has undertaken a municipal experiment which if successful will have much to do with revolutionizing its general attitude toward the treatment of the criminal, dependent and defective classes, says a Cleveland dispatch. Eight hundred and fifty acres of land have been purchased, which, with an adjoining 450 acres recently bought for cemetery purposes, makes a total area of 1,300 acres, or two square miles. This vast tract of land, ten miles from the public square, will furnish advantageous locations for the various institutions which the municipality finds necessary and useful in its department of charities and correction. It will be known as the Cleveland farm colony.

The administration building will be located on the summit of a ridge which traverses the center of the tract, from which is an extended view over the farm and many miles beyond. Located distant from one another will be the house of correction, the detention hospital, a tuberculosis sanitarium, a general hospital for convalescent and chronic cases, a hospital for the treatment of the drunk and drug habits, a home for aged poor, a home for cripples and a home for wayward girls.

A municipal hospital car with beds and attendant nurses will be run over the suburban line from the city to the different hospitals on the farm. Special cars will also be employed for the other departments of the colony.

The infirmary or home for aged and defective poor will be one of the first institutions to be removed to the new site. While there will be larger wards for the more helpless as far as possible, the residents will be grouped in cottages. Here separate groups will be made according to nationality and congenial tastes.

Husbands and wives will occupy a part of a cottage by themselves. Each cottage or when desirable each individual will be given a small plot of ground for cultivation. Here will be located not a monumental institution, but a village of unfortunates, with homelike surroundings, sufficient activity to foster a feeling of independence, some room for individual whims and caprices and all in the midst of the free open country, flowers, trees and gardens.

To the residents of the other institutions will be given freedom from city temptations, the privilege of outdoor life and of regaining the normal physical conditions which are important open country, trees and gardens.

Because of mental and bodily defects many of these people have been crowded out of the mounds of the regular strenuous industries in shops and factories. With every industrial depression a larger number of them are forced into the ranks of the criminal and dependent classes. Unlike the crowded factories, the land always furnishes opportunities for the weak and defective to do some work according to their abilities. The men past their prime, the crippled, the feeble minded, who can give only a partial fragmentary day's labor, will have a fair chance to use their limited talents.

In two square miles of land, with its wooded hills, rolling meadows and plowed fields, with its walks, drives and gardens, with its cottages, shops and barns, with its cattle, sheep and fowl, this farm colony will offer larger opportunities for useful, happier lives for the weak, unfortunate and poor of a great city.

A "SUPERMARINE" BOAT.

Novel High Speed Craft Devised by French Engineer.

A novel form of high speed boat has recently been devised by a French engineer, M. de Lambert, which involves a radical departure from all previous designs of hull, says Harper's Weekly. It is termed a "skating," or "supermarine" boat, for it is constructed to glide along the surface of the water rather than experience resistance by being immersed and passing through. This is accomplished by means of five inclined planes, which are fixed on the bottom of the hull and which when the boat is at rest are a few inches in the water. When the engine is started the hull is raised, so that the boat runs with less resistance on the inclined planes, which then rest on a mixture of air and water.

With a twelve horsepower petroleum motor it is reported that a speed of from twenty-six to twenty-eight knots an hour can be made, a rate not attained by motor boats with eighty horsepower engines. The new boat is also capable of being handled with considerable facility and stopped readily.

The attainment of high speed by motor boats which run on the surface of the water rather than through it has attracted some attention lately, and an English high speed boat was built where this idea was considered in designing the hull, but the use of the inclined planes to diminish the resistance as successfully carried out is quite novel and will be tried further.

An Animal Story For Little Folks

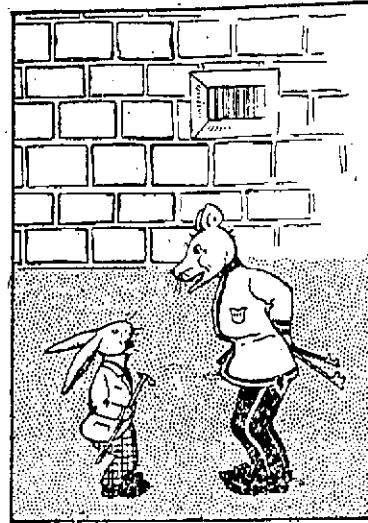

The Foolish Rabbit

There was a rabbit who was very much afraid that he would not enjoy all of the good things of life, and so he went about to find what he could do to have a better time than he would have if he only remained around the house with his little brothers and sisters.

As he was passing along the street he met the warden of the jail and told him that he was out for a good time.

"Can you make any suggestion to help me?" asked the rabbit.

The warden said that he could not think of anything at that moment, but

offered to put him in jail for awhile, for he thought that he might enjoy himself there.

But that was not the kind of fun that Mr. Rabbit wanted, and he spurned the offer of the warden. Then he proceeded on his way, and he had not gone far when he heard the report of a gun.

"Here come the hunters!" he cried, and away he darted to escape the sorry fate that had befallen his cousin only a week before.

But the hunters were faster than Mr. Rabbit, and soon they were in sight, and a load of shot caught the poor bunny in the side. His last thoughts were of how much better off he would have been if he had not been so anxious to have a good time and had accepted the warden's offer to let him stay in the jail for awhile.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

HOW THE FROG WON THE RACE

Everybody knows what a fondness Mr. Frog has for engaging in contests of all kinds with his fellow creatures, so that when he one day met the crane that long legged bird was not surprised to receive a challenge.

"I can get across that pond before you," declared Mr. Frog.

"No you can't," replied Mr. Crane, with a laugh.

"Well, we'll have a race," declared Mr. Frog, "and the first to get on the other side of the pond shall marry the miller's daughter."

"I shall win without trouble," cried Mr. Crane, who was thinking how far he could stride with his long legs.

"We shall see," said Mr. Frog.

"Are you ready?" asked Mr. Crane.

"Yes," answered Mr. Frog.

"Go!" cried Mr. Crane, and away they both went into the water.

Mr. Crane strode boldly in and went through the water with long steps, rapidly leaving the shore behind.

Into the water also went Mr. Frog with a big splash.

When Mr. Crane had gone some distance he stopped and looked around to see where Mr. Frog was, but that wary creature was not in sight.

"Well, I guess I've left him far behind," said Mr. Crane, with a laugh. "I shall just wait here for him to catch up."

So he waited and waited, and no sign came of Mr. Frog.

But presently he heard a voice calling to him, and when he looked over at the other side of the pond who should Mr. Crane see but Mr. Frog.

Mr. Frog had swum all the way under the surface of the water!

"I told you I would get here first," laughed the frog.—Atlanta Constitution.

SEA-LION IN BATHTUB.

Hotel Employee Thought It Was a Monster, But It Was Only a Pet.

"Gimme a revolver, gimme a shotgun," shouted "Tom," a window washer, as he dashed up to Clerk McHenry in the Victoria hotel the other afternoon, his eyes looking like china nest eggs. "There's a horrible lockin' insect in the bathtub in 999—a tiger or a sea serpent or something."

Clerk McHenry, aroused, led a procession to the room, relates the Chicago Record-Herald. From behind the bathroom door came the sound of splashing and grunting. As the timid group stood there, a couple from Santa Barbara, Cal., occupants of the room, brushed by, and the woman flew for the bathroom.

The amazed spectators saw her lift a weird-looking creature with long whiskers and shining body from the tub and begin to pet it. Then she turned and laughed.

"Isn't he pretty?" she said. "You see, we've got a carload of them—bigger ones, though. We're going east with them. There are 50 big ones and this little baby."

"That's all right," commented Clerk McHenry, "but what is it?"

"A sea lion, of course," answered the woman, and the investigators faded.

CHINAMAN WANTED A WEIGH

Tried All Kinds of Coins on the Machine, But Couldn't Find One to Fit.

As he walked out upon the platform of the elevated station he attracted attention immediately, relates the New York Post. He was rather different from the ordinary Chinaman. There were the coiled pigtail, flapping trousers and long, loose jacket, but his face was anything but Celestial. While the usual Chinaman expresses only habitual stoicism this man beamed good humor and intelligent inquisitiveness.

Unaware that he was the center of attraction, he walked up to a weighing machine and gingerly inspected it. That he understood its purpose was evident, for he reached down into a pocket and hauled out a nickel, which he vainly attempted to insert in the slot. This coin did not fit and he tried again with a quarter. Still no success. Evidently this machine of the "Foreign Devil" required a bigger sacrifice. A half-dollar was forthcoming, and just as he was inserting a folded dollar bill, the station agent rushed out and held his arm.

SHAH AFRAID IN DARK.

The Light Must Not Be Turned Off Where the Persian Monarch Is.

When the shah called upon Mr. Curie in Paris recently, to see the wonders of radium, he did not like the idea of a dark room. His grand vizier, relates the London St. James' Gazette, suggested drawing the curtains of the room, but Mr. Curie persisted that darkness was necessary. Thereupon the shah called M. Paoli, the French detective protector of royalties, who assured his majesty that there was no danger. So the party descended to the underground apartment in the hotel known as the safe room. M. Curie began expounding the properties of radium, and then gave a signal for the electric light to be switched off. Immediately a panic seized the shah's suite (says the Chronicle's correspondent), and all cried out in Persian and French: "Light! Light! Turn on the light!" The electricity was switched on again, and the disappointed savant was forced to show his radium in a lighted room.

An Engagement.

The two strangers who had accidentally met in the hotel lobby were discussing friends.

"No," said the tall, thin man, very seriously, "I'm looking for the friend who is a friend in need."

The fat man rose hastily and consulted his watch.

"By George!" he exclaimed. "You'll have to excuse me. I almost forgot that engagement."—Brooklyn Life.
